Carnegie Medal Awarded Local Youths Posthumously

POSTHUMOUSLY AWARDED... Gasper E. Maurigi, right and Wallace Bourgeois, of Hancock County have received Carnegie medal awards posthumously. The two boys were drowned last March 17 while attempting to seek aid for four companions trapped by a flash flood.

The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission has posthumously awarded bronze medals to two Hancock County youths who drowned last March 17 while attempting to seek aid for four young companions trapped by a flash flood on Catahoula Creek.

Recognition was given to Wallace J. Bourgeois, Jr., 15, Waveland, and Gasper E. Maurigi, 16, Bay St. Louis, at a recent meeting of the commission held at Pittsburgh, Pa.

In addition to the medals, death benefits of $350 each were awarded to young Bourgeois' father, Wallace J. Bourgeois, 734 Robert St., Waveland, and young Maurigi's father, Gasper E. Maurigi, 215 Main St., Bay St. Louis.

The six youngsters were on a camping trip on an island near the junction of the Catahoula and Hickory Creeks, headwaters of the Jordan River in Hancock County, when a heavy rain, accompanied by high winds, forced the creeks out of their banks, flooding their camping site.

All climbed into trees to escape the rising flood waters but when a search-rescue party organized by Hancock Sheriff Gerald V. Price, Jr. arrived the next morning only three remained. They were George A. Garcia, Jr., Larry Cox, Lewis Kempf, Jr. and Horace Rounsaville.

The official citation tells what happened after the boys sought safety in the tree tops.

"By morning the water was eight to ten feet deep for one and a half mile on each side of the creek channel and trees were being swept away by the swift current and heavy debris."

"Fearing that George (Garcia), who could not swim, and the others would drown if the trees in which they had taken refuge also were uprooted, Wallace and Gasper decided to go for help."

"They and another boy entered the water after discarding their jackets and shoes. Swimming with the current, they made their way from one tree to another toward a road 2,000 feet downstream. After swimming 700 hundred feet, the other boy suggested that they turn back."

"Wallace said that he was going on and continued downstream, disappearing in the trees and brush."

"Gasper and the other boy shouted to Wallace, who answered weakly that he had lost his way. Gasper and the other boy continued calling but heard nothing further."

"Stating that he was going to look for Wallace, Gasper swam 30 feet downstream. He seized a floating limb, which struck a tree and caused him to be submerged."

After calling repeatedly without receiving an answer, the other boy swam a short distance toward the rest of the group and then took refuge in a tree.

"About three hours later, two members of a rescue party reached him in a motorboat. They removed him and the other three boys to high ground."

The bodies of Wallace and Gasper were recovered in the vicinity several days later after flood waters had subsided.

Civil defense units, officers and volunteers from several Coast Counties joined in the massive search by land, air and boat which led to final recovery of the bodies.

Explains Some Of BAWI Provisions

Lee Woods, New Industry representative from the Mississippi Power Company, explained some of the provisions of the BAWI law at a meeting at the Coast Electric building Monday night in connection with the proposed move to Bay St. Louis of the Enameling Division of Industrial Electric, Inc.

Mr. Woods cited the City's responsibility for acquiring and guaranteeing the bonds.

The site will be purchased, and the building for the plant will be constructed by Industrial Electric, Inc., and conveyed to the City when the bonds are issued, Mayor Scaife said.

The company will pay to the City in rentals the amount equal to the bond and interest and their retirement after a period of 25 years, the land and building, debt free, will be the property of the City.

Mayor Scaife stated the City is advertising this week its intention to hold an election to float a $300,000 bond issue.

Over 50% of the qualified voters in the city must cast their ballot and in order to carry 68% of those who vote must vote favorably.

It was stated that in the beginning the plant will employ approximately 80 to 100 and it will grow between $300,000 and $400,000 annually.

The City Council, Mayor Scaife said, "feels the move of such an established and successful business is a wonderful opportunity for the people of Bay St. Louis."

What's this little fellow up to? Where's he going? Why?
He knows. Maybe he couldn't put it into words, but he's just as sure as any little man can be.
He is taking in God's world with all his little-child faith. He knows that tree and how God made it strong against the storm.
Those clouds? He knows God painted them in the sky for him to enjoy.
He knows that more of God's wonders are right up ahead—and that's where he's going. Just walking among God!
In the truest sense of the words, our young friend doesn't have to FIND God—he is WITH God.
We are older. A lot of things clutter up our lives. We are busy losing God. When we do search for Him we scarcely know where to turn.
It would be nice to join this young fellow—to share his thoughts, his hopes, his dreams, his God.
We can't do that. We don't have a child's faith. But we can come CLOSER to God and ease our restless hearts.
We can go to our church—God's temple, our place of worship.
God will be there.

Georgia continues to be the South leading producer of pulpwood for the pulp and paper industry, the state's 1960 harvest totaling 4.9 million cords, Alabama cut 3 million cords, while North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida each cut more than 2 million.

SALES INSPECTION OF MOTOR VEHICLES
Had Cars Inspected
E. Birdsong, Commissioner of Motor Safety, had the following comment on the progress of the Motor Vehicle Inspection Law when interviewed recently:
"According to our own records about 600,000 cars have their inspection stickers already. In fact, only a very small percentage of motorists have not complied with the law. This indicates to us that public acceptance of the program is very great and this is backed up by the numerous comments on the effectiveness that have been received by the Motor Vehicle Inspection Office."
"There is no penalty for not having your car inspected but there is a penalty for operating an uninspected vehicle. We do not want anyone fined because of the inspection program but if you have not complied with the law you are subject to a fine in Justice of the Peace court. If you plan to drive your car on the state's highways we urged you to get your inspection sticker immediately."
"The inspection period next year and each year thereafter will be during January, February and March. It is recommended that you have your car inspected early in the inspection period each year so that you can avoid the last minute press at the inspection stations."
Commissioner Birdsong also mentioned the traffic safety results this year. He stated, "We have enjoyed the full cooperation of the driving public. With their help we have had 71 fewer deaths on the highways this year to date than during the same period last year. We sincerely hope our drivers will continue to be safe and law-abiding and help us maintain our present safety record."

Bridge Building For Mississippi
Bridge building is big business in Mississippi. Spread over the state's 9,000-mile highway system are almost 3,600 bridges, from a few months to more than 60 years old. A few of the old wood bridges are still in use, but are disappearing rapidly. $50 million have been spent in the last five years for bridge construction in Mississippi. That amount completed 500 bridges, with 177 finished last year.

DAIRY NOTES
Help prevent the annual summer slump in milk production. Check your permanent pastures, provide summer temporary grazing crops like Sudan or millet to help the permanent pastures take care of the extra summer load.
Try turning cows onto grazing at night. They will graze more than they will during the hot day time.
Feed plenty of hay and silage along with grain to maintain milk production and body weight.
You might try green feeding. Use a forage harvester and cut millet, sudan, corn or other feed and haul it to the cows green. Provide plenty of clean drinking water close enough so that cows will not have to walk far to get it. Control flies. Give the cows plenty of shade and salt.
TEMPORARY GRAZING
It is time now to make that third planting of Sudan or millet for temporary summer grazing. Don't try to depend on the old, grazed down millet or Sudan making a comeback. New plantings give much better results.
Make sure that when you plan the grazing crop that you put down the recommended fertilizer at planting time. This will help insure that your grazing crop will come up and grow off fast.
POULTRY NOTES
Lots of you are considering whether to grow your own replacement pullets or buy started pullets. In deciding all costs - chick cost, fuel cost, lights, litter, medication, vaccination, mortality, labor, depreciation, taxes, insurance and interest.
If you decide to buy started pullets, buy those that have good egg production qualities. Buy from a good grower or dealer.
Buy from growers that keep different age groups separated. Check the pullet growers' grow-out program to determine whether the pullets are completely isolated from old hens. Isolation breeding reduces the incidence of disease problems and is one of the most important ways to reduce losses from leucosis.
Obtain contract from grower specifying starting date, delivery date, deposit required, strain of birds, vaccination and feeding.
Pullets should be wormed two days before moving. This helps break the life cycle of the round worm.
SAFETY
Insecticides are vital to modern farming, but must be handled with care. Mississippi's safety record with insecticides is good and to keep it that way, be sure that you read the label and follow directions when using any agricultural chemical.

Forestry Bank Set To Help Landowners

Mississippi's Forestry Bank—a new state agency created by the 1960 Legislature—was established to help landowners with funds for treeplanting and timberland improvement. This is the second column in a five-part series of questions and answers about the Forestry Bank.

Q. What is a timber management plan?
A. A management plan is a written plan for the operation of a forest property, using good forestry practices.

Q. Why is a timber management plan necessary?
A. Timber, properly managed, produces more income than unmanaged timber. Under proper management, Mississippi's idle acres can provide a continuing source of income for landowners. Mississippi's timber production can achieve its goal of a billion-dollar income source much faster if it develops according to good forestry practices, as set forth in well-defined management plans.

Q. Who helps the landowner develop a timber management plan?
A. Assistance in this will be given by a management forester from the Forestry Commission.

Q. Who approves the timber management plan?
A. All management plans must be approved by the Forestry Commission.

Q. Does a landowner have to fence his timberland?
A. As a general rule, no. Fencing will be required only if livestock graze on adjacent property, and also if fencing is required as a part of the management plan.

Q. Can a landowner graze livestock on his land?
A. As a general rule, no. Livestock will destroy young seedlings. Livestock may graze under controlled conditions on land where existing timber is large enough that it will not be damaged.

Q. If there are some trees already on the land, how does a landowner determine what his land needs?
A. This will be determined by the timber management plan as it is developed by the landowner and the management forester.

Q. Will the Forestry Commission build fire lanes around the timber?
A. Fire lanes will be built only if they are a part of the timber management plan and are included in the estimate of costs.

Q. Can a landowner develop a few acres this year in the Forestry Bank program, add a few more acres next year, and perhaps add other acres the following year?
A. Yes. It is quite possible that the management plan may permit the development of blocks of acreage at staggered intervals. Additional acres may be developed from year to year as long as development costs do not exceed, at any time, the maximum dollar limits established by law.

Q. Who estimates how much money will be needed to develop a specific timber tract?
A. This will be estimated by a management forester at the time a timber management plan is prepared.

Q. Who does a landowner see first to get money to improve his land?
A. The landowner must check first with a conventional financial agency in the county where he lives. Under the Forestry Bank program, it is hoped that landowners can secure forest development funds from their local financial institutions. In such instances, the Forestry Bank will insure those loans fully. The Forestry Bank is not in competition with private enterprise, but is an agency established to provide assistance whenever local sources are unable to help.

Q. What does a landowner do if he is turned down by a conventional financial agency?
A. In such cases, he first gets a certificate of refusal. Then his next step is to apply directly to the Forestry Bank for assistance in his timber program.

Q. How does a landowner apply for federal funds?
A. The landowner must apply to the local ASC County Committee in the county where the land is located and must cooperate fully with a Commission Forester and the county ASC committee to secure treeplanting and timberland improvement.

HIGHWAYS AND PROGRESS

Money Problems, Then And Now Dictate Road Building Program

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is Part Three of a four-part series dealing with the history and development of the Mississippi State Highway Department and the state systems of highways.

PART THREE — From Emergency to Organization

You've heard it said many times. "If only we had the money," etc. It's a common problem, whether for the individual, the family, or the highway commissioner. From the very beginning, financing has been the single most difficult hurdle for the highway planner in Mississippi. It dictated the type roads used a hundred years ago, and today it's the difference between the highway system we have and the one we need.

CRISIS IN FINANCES

While money has been a chronic problem since early days of road-building, the big crisis for Mississippi came in 1928 when the federal government announced that the state lacked requirements to qualify for federal aid, and that no further allotment would be made after June 30, 1929.

The announcement spelled doom for the future of Mississippi highways, since then, as now federal aid supported a large share of the cost of new highway construction in the state. Governor Theodore G. Bilbo, quoted a government estimate that the state's 250,000 automobile owners were losing $30,000,000 annually as a result of bad roads, and asked for immediate reorganization of the State Highway Department in a quickly summoned extraordinary session of the legislature.

LEGISLATIVE STUDY

The extra session resulted in the creation of a committee which the Legislature directed to make a complete and thorough investigation of highway needs and report back to the 1930 regular session. The five-member committee spent the entire year of 1929 in the investigation.

The Stansel Act of 1930 set up the basic framework for present day highway administration in Mississippi. This act was based on a report furnished by Horace Stansel, head of the special investigative committee that was established by the 1929 Legislature. The Stansel Act provided for:

1. A primary road system not to exceed 4,000 miles and to consist of roads previously designated as the federal aid system plus such additional roads which would provide reasonable connection between county seats, principal highways of adjoining states, other places of 500 population or over, and state institutions. The State was made responsible for construction and maintenance.

2. A secondary road system with a maximum of 2,000 miles which consisted of all other highways previously designated to be under State maintenance, plus some specified additions.

3. A three-member Highway Commission (one from each supreme court district) with complete control and supervision over the Highway System. The Commission was to appoint a secretary and director, the director to employ a chief engineer and engineers of construction, maintenance and bridges.

4. Gave the Commission power of eminent domain in securing highway right-of-way.

5. Authorized construction by the counties and cities of links of roads for incorporation into the system with a provision for their reimbursement after they had been absorbed into the network.

MORE DEMANDS HEARD
Along came the early 30's with the depression and growing demand for improved public highways. Tourist sections complained that travelers were by-passing Mississippi because of poor highways. Governor Hugh White, in his 1936 inaugural address, stated: "My sole desire in this matter is to see that we are gotten out of the mud, dust and gravel as quickly as possible." Taking advantage of emergency federal aid legislation to embark on its largest highway construction program, a sys-

FIFTY-TWO VIE FOR TITLE MISS MISSISSIPPI

VICKSBURG—(Special)—Vicksburg will roll out the red carpet August 26 as the Jaycees again stage the gala and Mississippi-boosting Miss Mississippi Pageant.

Since the Vicksburg Junior Chamber of Commerce started sponsoring the pageant three years ago, two winners of the state-wide event have become Miss Americas and Pat McRaney of McComb, the reigning Miss Mississippi of 1960 won the talent award of the national Miss America contest.

This year, it is "Another one for 61."

Mississippi's two "Miss Americas" are Mary Ann Mobley of Bradon and Lynda Lee Mead of Natchez, 1958 and 1959 Mississippi winners.

According to Jaycee Public Relations Chairman Van Downey, 52 entrants will participate in this year's judging, to be held in Municipal auditorium, Vicksburg, starting August 2. A gala night-time parade will kick off the pageant the evening of August 1.

Among top awards going to the winner and her four alternates will be $2,000.00 in scholarships, compliments of Mississippi Pepsi-Cola Bottlers Scholarship Foundation. In addition to a $1,000 scholarship, the Miss Mississippi winner receives a complete wardrobe of clothes for Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City from Kennington's in Jackson, and other prizes.

Among contestants competing for the coveted Miss Mississippi will be Miss Bay St. Louis, Mary Sue Breath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Breath, Jr.

The total output value of the pulp and paper industry in 15 Southern states came to $4,335,000,000 in 1960, according to the 1961 Blue Book of Southern Progress.

Use of stainless steel and galvanized sheet in automobiles is increasing. One make of car, Ford's muffers made of long lived stainless steel as standard equipment.

tem of state primary and secondary roads touching all 82 counties was called for.

The program began with an insurance of $23 million in notes. In 1938, the Legislature authorized insurance of an additional $60 million in bonds with about $21.5 million set aside for refunds on the previous issue and the remainder for new construction. Another $32,000,000 bond issue was approved in 1946.

While these bond issues helped overcome an earlier lag in road construction, they failed to provide a long-range approach to needs which mushroomed as changing times brought new emphasis on transportation.

(Part Four will tell the effect of a study by the Automotive Safety Foundation on the present highway program in Mississippi.)

RECENT CHANGES IN THE SOCIAL SECURITY LAW

Changes in the Social Security Law signed by President Kennedy recently directly affect many persons aged 62 or older, giving them social security benefits for the first time or increasing benefits already payable to them. Mr. Jerome Drane, Manager of the Gulfport Social Security Office, said recently.

Under the new law men can begin collecting benefits at age 62 if they choose, just as women have been able to do since 1956. But workers who decide to take benefits before they are 65 will get less per month than they would if they wait until age 65, Mr. Drane said.

The sooner a worker takes his benefits after age 62, the greater the reduction in his benefits will be. That is, a worker who starts receiving his benefit at age 62 will receive 80% of the amount he would receive at age 65.

Another change in the law lowers the amount of credit required for old-age and survivors benefits. The new law makes payments possible for a person who has worked credit for one calendar quarter for each year after 1950 and up to the year he reaches 65, or 62 for women.

This means that a man who reached 65 or a woman who reached 62 before 1958 will need credit for only a year and a half of work under social security to qualify for retirement benefits. Survivors of workers who died in 1958 or later and who were not eligible for benefits before this change may now be eligible. Mr. Drane requests these people to contact the Social Security office immediately.

Other changes include the increase in benefit to widows by about 10 percent and the raising of the minimum benefit from $33.00 to 40.00 per month. Mr. Drane states these two changes will be automatic and effective with August of 1961. Those persons affected by these two changes need not contact the Social Security office. Their increase will be in the check received in September 1961 for August 1961.

Any person requesting information about their social security should get in touch with the social Security office located at 1022 32nd Avenue, Gulfport, Miss.

HOME AGENT'S NOTES

MARCIA P. HUGHES
Home Demonstration Agent

We find many recipes today calling for sour cream. We can buy sour cream from the dairy display at the grocery store.

But how many of us know that it isn't the same kind of sour cream that grandma used to churn into butter. Today's sour cream is dairy-made. It is really fresh sweet cream to which a culture has been added. The culture adds a custard-like consistency and produces a distinctive tangy flavor.

You can whip sour cream, but be sure to chill both the bowl and beater before you start to whip. It won't get stiff when whipped, but fluffy and almost double in volume. Top gingerbread, spice cake or puddings with whipped sour cream.

If hot sauces and main dishes, remove food from direct heat before you add sour cream, then reheat to simmering. If you boil sour cream, it will curdle and become very thin.

CHICKEN AND SOUR CREAM MOLD

2 Envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 1/2 cups chicken broth, divided
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper
2 cups cooked diced chicken
1/2 cup toasted sliced almonds
1/2 cup sliced black olives
2 cups sour cream

Sprinkle gelatin in 1 cup of chicken broth to soften. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat and stir in remaining 1 1/2 cups chicken broth, onion, salt and pepper. Chill to unbeaten egg whites consistency. Fold in chicken, almonds, olives and sour cream. Turn into a 6-cup mold and chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate and garnish with salad greens. Makes 8 servings.

HOW LONG DO HOME APPLIANCES LAST?

A family needs to know how many years of service it can expect from home appliances so they can make long range spending plans. To help them answer their questions, estimates have been compiled from Census data.

If you buy a new refrigerator you may expect to use it an average of 16 years. A new electric range also has a 16 year life span. But if you buy a used electric refrigerator or range, you will have about 8 years and a used gas range about 9 years, the estimates show.

Says Today's Bread Is Better

Cleveland, O.—Grandmother's crusty bread was far behind today's enriched white bread in nutrients needed by individuals, according to Dr. Henry Borsook, nationally known nutritionist.

Because of enrichment, "bread became far more nutritious than bread had ever been before," Dr. Borsook said. He is from the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

Enrichment is the addition of the B vitamins, niacin, thiamine, and riboflavin to white bread and flour.

Dr. Borsook spoke at a special dinner held in connection with the annual convention of the Cleveland of the American Home Economics Association. The dinner was held to observe the 20th anniversary year of the enrichment program for white bread and flour. The enrichment program began in 1941.

Dr. Borsook said that grandmother's bread rated high in nostalgia but not in nutrition. Today's enriched white bread is greatly superior in its contributions of the B vitamins, iron and calcium.

He noted that enrichment is credited with definitely helping the general level of health in the United States as well as helping to all but wipe out certain vitamin deficiency diseases.

"Before the bread enrichment program, our white bread was a result of the milling process, was on the low side in iron and in Vitamin B1 (thiamine)," Dr. Borsook explained.

"It didn't have much Vitamin B2 (riboflavin) to start with anyway, and it was on the low side in niacin. Since it is immaterial what the source of an essential nutrient is, we recommended adding certain essential nutrients and now enriched white bread is a very nutritious food."
